

RAD INTERPRETING FREELANCE COMMUNICATION PROFESSIONAL PRIVACY POLICY

In registering with RAD as a Freelance Communication Professional your personal details will be securely and confidentially stored in our database. This information will be used solely by RAD Interpreting to find the most appropriate Communication Professional for a particular assignment. No other RAD personnel will have access to the information provided.

Some assignments call for high level security checks and as such the client may request information such as your name and/or address. We will discuss this with you and will not disclose any of your personal details without your full consent.

On the rare occasions a client requests proof of experience, a general brief is prepared with your experiences and qualifications. This brief does not include any of your personal details.

Your email address will be stored in our mailing list. Emails sent to you will solely be related to assignments and bookings, unless you have agreed that we can contact you regarding service developments.
